NOON REPORTS.

Only the Passengers to Blame.

NEW YORK, August 28.—The local steamboat inspectors, who made an investigation of the causes which led to the burning of the steamer Seawanhaka, made public their report yesterday; they say the testimony goes to show that there was an abundance of life preservers on board and in every respect conformable to the requirements of law. Upon examination of the boiler after the accident two of the top row of the flues in the starboard boiler were found to be ruptured close to the back flue sheet. This, they believe, occurred after the vessel was beached. The fire was caused by a draft forcing gases and flames out from the grate and the furnace doors igniting the wood work. Inspectors believe, also, that had the passengers taken the advice of the officers and remained on board until the vessel was grounded nearly all would have been saved.

An Interesting Family.

HARRISBURG, August 28.—E. Z. Wallower, proprietor of the Harrisburg Independent, was tried last night at Carlisle in the Criminal Court for defaming the character of Mrs. Catharine Zell at the time she was under sentence of death for the murder of Mrs. Elizabeth Kiehl, by republishing an article in reference to her which was taken from the New York Herald. The jury this morning rendered a verdict of not guilty, and ordered the prosecutor to pay costs. Mrs. Zell's husband, the prosecutor, now lies in jail, awaiting sentence for larceny committed at the jail while he was visiting his wife.

Religion Still Afflicts the French.

PARIS, August 28.—M. Lepere, ex-Minister of the Interior, and an intimate friend of M. Gambetta, in speaking at Arillon, in the Department of Yonne, referred to M. Defreycinet, the Premier, and his new religious bill, and said: "The decrees against illegal congregations will not remain a dead letter. The Chamber of Deputies is desirous that the existing laws shall be enforced, and pursuant to that will the decrees will be carried out to the very letter against all the congregations."

Racing.

SARATOGA, August 28.—The weather is clear but warm, but the attendance is large and fashionable. The track is in fine condition. The first race, for beaten horses one mile and a furlong, was won by Ella Warfield, Mayflower second, and Florence B third. Time, 1:58¼.

Second race, Baden Baden handicap sweepstakes, three miles; Elias Lawrence won, Irish King second and Chimney Sweep third. Time, 5:28¼.

Third race, selling race, three-quarters of a mile; Marchioness won, Susquehanna second and Mark L. third. Time, 1:16¾.

Fourth race, free handicap steeple-chase, about two and a quarter miles; Darby won, Wayfarer second. Disturbance's rider fell off. Time, 4:29.

BY P. M. HALE, PRINTER TO THE STATE.
L. L. POLK, CORRESPONDING EDITOR.
RALEIGH, N. C.

SUNDAY.....AUGUST 29, 1880.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES.

There is no question that the people of North Carolina are prospering. Since they were relieved of the curse of Radical rule, they have gone earnestly to work knowing that their lives and their families are safe while they labor to accumulate property, and that the fruits of their labor are safe from incendiary fire and the even more destructive power of carpet-bag legislative theft in the shape of special taxes. Under equal laws justly administered and blessed with abundant crops for years past they are prosperous—but poor. That is to say, money is scarce, as hard to find as ever it was. The discharge of old obligations, the improvement of lands and dwellings, the purchase of machinery, better food and better clothing and more of both contribute to this scarcity. County, town and State taxes add to it. To these last many mistakenly attribute what are called "hard times." In reality they are but a small part of the burden which presses upon the people. It is the hand of the Federal tax-gatherer which, not laid directly upon very many of them, is a weight of burden almost insupportable. It can be lifted only by a revision of the tariff. The tariff will never be revised until the Congress is thoroughly Democratic, and to secure a Democratic Congress is at least as important as any matter now before the people. It is of comparatively little value, it is no relief whatever to the people to reduce government expenditures, so long as the tariff remains unchanged and the same amount of taxes is collected.

Urging upon the people of North Carolina their vital interest in the Congressional elections this Fall, we have more than once pointed out to them how they are affected by the unseen tax-gatherer of the Government at Washington. Readers of THE NEWS ought to be familiar with the facts, but they will not be hurt by line upon line and precept upon precept, and the freetraders of the Cobden Club have just issued a pamphlet which, as we see in the Charleston News, illustrates the working of the present system in relation to our farming interests in the same way that THE NEWS has made plain its effects upon our whole people. Starting with the accepted business axiom that "the golden rule of successful trading is to buy in the cheapest and sell in the dearest market," the pamphlet says that the cultivator of any natural product in America, whether it be cotton, grain, meat or tobacco, reverses this rule, buying in the dearest and selling in the cheapest market. It is interesting to follow the figures showing how much money is annually taken out of the pockets of American producers by compelling them to work the ordinary rule of trade backwards in this manner.

According to our last census, there were 6,000,000 of agriculturists in the United States, and by this time, as the new census will doubtless show, there must be at least 7,000,000, with their families. The average annual expenditure of each of these families, for articles on which a "protective" tariff is laid, is estimated, from careful figures, at $200. The articles for which this $200 is expended are wearing apparel and household articles, iron work and farming implements, earthenware and all the multitude of things which go to keep a family and provide means for working the land. This is a small average, as it includes many well-to-do families.

Two hundred dollars each for 7,000,000 families is $1,400,000,000 in the aggregate, expended upon goods which are "protected" by the tariff. The average amount of this protection is, to put the figures so low that there can be no dispute, forty per cent. That is to say, they pay for the necessaries of life, excepting food, forty per cent. more than they would have to pay if there were no protective tariff, and they were allowed to buy in the cheapest market they could find. And if they could buy for $100 what they now pay $140 for, it is evident that they would save $400,000,000 every year. This vast amount, $400,000,000, is what the single class of American agriculturists pay every year for the sake of "protecting" certain interests.

Now compare this with what the government receives from the duties placed on imports. Last year the total receipts from customs were $137,250,047. This is a little more than one-third what a single interest—the agricultural—paid out above the normal price for the necessaries of existence and of labor. There is an enormous discrepancy here, as every one can see; an immense expenditure of money, which seems to vanish as it passes from the hands of the farmers under the plaudits of the government. But all this $137,250,047 does not come from the farmers. As nearly as can be calculated, not more than $60,000,000 of the excess of $400,000,000 which they pay for "protection" goes to the government, and the sum which they see vanish from their hands is about $340,000,000 a year.

The remedy proposed by the Cobden Club, a purely free-trade organization, is not the right one. Looking to the evils of too sudden change, they propose a gradual abolition of the tariff system. This would not be wise. The collection of taxes by tariff is the safest and easiest way of supporting the government and paying its debt. What the country needs is what the Constitution authorizes, a tariff for revenue; not a tariff which prevents revenue by prohibiting importations and enriches a small class by robbing the whole people under the forms of law.

THE THIRTY-FOURTH DISTRICT.

The two Democratic Senators from the thirty-fourth district will be Dr. TYRE YORK and T. S. TUCKER, Esq. Dr. YORK was during the last two years a member of the House from Wilkes county, and has been a good and valuable member. Mr. TUCKER is a lawyer by profession and lives in Statesville. He is said to be a man of great ability and one who will do good work for his party during the campaign and for the State in the Senate.

THERE ARE some things said about us that even we can't stand, little as we trouble ourself about such matters. The Winston Republican says that we have been in the habit of never getting tired of commending Capt. NATT ATKINSON, on many occasions styling him "the leader of the House." We can imagine but one more serious charge against us; and that, too, the inventive faculty of the Republican supplies, when it says that we are now engaged in denouncing the said ATKINSON as "meaner than a Radical" because he "refuses to support the Democratic Railroad Ring State ticket." We respectfully ask the Republican, inasmuch as it can possibly gain nothing for itself or its party by these two deliberate mistakes, to correct them. We should be very sorry to have anybody suppose that we had been such an ass as to think, or so wicked as to say what we are alleged to have said in praise of Capt. NATT ATKINSON, and it would be matter of real distress if any one should be induced to think that the space of this paper was so valueless as to be given up to abuse of him. Correct the matter if you please, Mr. Republican, and for once enjoy the virtuous sensation that follows a good action, even when it costs nothing. It is a crime to make mistakes on purpose; but to make that sort of mistake when nothing is to be gained by it is a blunder.

IN HIS SPEECH at Henderson yesterday, as reported in THE NEWS this morning, Governor JARVIS said that Judge BUXTON'S record in the Convention of 1875 shows, 1st, That he did not wish thieves disfranchised; 2d, That if disfranchised, he did not wish them to pay any public tax; 3d, That he did not wish them taken out of the Penitentiary to labor on the public works. On page 221 of the journals, the reader will find the ordinance disfranchising those convicted of felony or other infamous crime; and on page 228 Judge BUXTON'S, and on page 227, General BARRINGER'S vote against the ordinance. On page 225 WILSON CARY, the keeper of certain noted archives, is recorded as proposing to amend this ordinance by relieving the felons of payment of public tax, and on pages 225 and 226 will be found the votes of BUXTON and BARRINGER in favor of setting this premium on rascality. On page 259, is the ordinance authorizing employment of convicts on public works, and on page 260, Judge BUXTON'S vote is recorded against it. The General could not stand this, deserted the Judge, and voted aye.

IF THERE is labor enough in the South to do the picking, the cotton crop is expected to reach 6,000,000 bales. The great difficulty is in securing it before the rains and the frost come. Last year was an exceptionally good year for picking, early and late. This year cotton has matured rather earlier than last, and almost every market has had its first bale, though the season of 1879–80 has yet some days to run. Still it is scarcely to be expected that, on the whole, such a time for picking will be known as was known last winter, extending up to Christmas.

DEMOCRACY pays everywhere. The Democrats got possession of Granville in 1879, and cut down the expenses of that tax-ridden county to $11,880.63. But they did not have a fair showing in 1879, as they only had control of nine months of the year ending on September 1. This year they have further reduced expenses to $8,575.23, and have done this, the Free Lance says, while paying expenses, dollar for dollar, in cash instead of scrip. In 1876, the expenses were $21,983.66.

THE Judges of the Supreme Court filed opinions in twenty cases yesterday, digests of which appear on the fourth page of this morning's NEWS, and then took a recess until the 15th day of September.

STATE POLITICAL NOTES:—

Col. Paul B. Means, Chairman, has called a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee of the 6th Congressional District, at Charlotte, on Tuesday, September 7. Col. Bennett's nomination for Judge of the 4th District makes necessary the selection of a candidate for Elector in his place.

The Burke Blade says that Democratic organization is thorough, and the county will give a heavy majority. Many Radicals daily come over to Hancock and Jarvis, and in Quaker Meadow township there is a negro Democratic Club.

C. W. Grandy is nominated for Congress and Jno. B. Respass for elector by the Republicans of the first district.

NEW YORK CORRESPONDENCE.

[Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS.]

NEW YORK, August 27.—Among many Southern merchants who have arrived within a few days are Mr. L. V. Liles and W. E. Cox of Litesville, Mr. Alexander, of Alexander & Harris, of Charlotte, J. W. Carrington of Rockingham, H. C. Newton and Mr. McNair, of McNair & James, of Laurel Hill.

A large party of North Carolinians, forty or fifty I am told, called on General Hancock yesterday. One of them, whom I have seen, was as much struck with the General's appearance, and manners, and conversation, as was the party with whom I called last week.

The wife of the venerable Rev. Dr. Snodgrass, who was minister of the Presbyterian church in Fayetteville sixty years ago, died suddenly and very peacefully at Saratoga on Tuesday morning. She was 79, and her husband is 85, and still in active service as minister of a very large church at Goshen, N. Y.

A hotel keeper at New Brighton, Staten Island, has followed Judge Hilton's example and refused to receive a Jew in his house. The Jew has sued him, laying his damages at $5,000. The keeper says he was obliged to refuse or quit hotel keeping; for, says he, if Jews are allowed all others are driven away after which they themselves go away. He makes a distinction between his hotel, which is merely a boarding house, and a hotel at which a traveler might call for a meal or a night's lodging.

Some of your readers may be amused to hear, and some may be incredulous as to the story, which is, nevertheless, true, that in consequence of the dearness of terra firma and the cheapness of the aerial regions, it is common here to stable horses in the upper stories of buildings; in one case, that gave rise to some funny incidents, a horse was stabled in the sixth story of a building, at the corner of Wooster and Spring streets. His owner, Mr. Otis, has 170 horses in the various parts of the building. He lately bought for $200 a fine bay, which he gave to his daughter for a saddle horse, naming him "Captain Jinks" and stabling him in the sixth story, to which he was raised by one of those modern conveniences, an elevator. After a while a party appeared and claimed the horse as his property, stolen from him. Otis declined to give up the horse, and consulted his lawyer, who advised him that, of course, a writ of replevin would be served upon him; that he must not resist the writ, but that there was no law to compel him in any way to assist in the removal of the horse. Whereupon the following occurred:

"On Saturday City Marshal Peter W. Salmon appeared at the stable and presented the writ. Mr. Otis was out, but his agent had been well instructed and showed the marshal without delay to the stall in which "Captain Jinks" stood. The marshal, delighted at the ease with which he was making the seizure, untied the horse and led him towards the entrance to the elevator. Here he met with his first serious check. The foreman wouldn't open the door and when appealed to said that his instructions from Mr. Otis were to allow the marshal to take the horse, but not down the elevator.

"Does he expect me to carry him down stairs on my back?" demanded the marshal.

"You may if you like," was the cool response.

"I'm blank-blanked if I do. I'll rig a fall and lower him out of the window."

"No, you won't," said the stableman: "My instructions are not to allow that. Mr. Otis says it might strain the wall."

Marshal Salmon retired in disgust, and "Captain Jinks" is still up stairs in the stable."

Charles Goetz was up at court in Brooklyn last week at the suit of his children, who desired possession of their mother's property, which he held. After the death of his first wife he hired a Mrs. Hahn, (who left her husband Hahn after three weeks of honeymoon,) as housekeeper. He liked her so well that he proposed matrimony, to which she assented provided she could get a release from Hahn. Goetz accomplished that, as they supposed, by paying Hahn $25 for a full release of all claim to her. Thereupon they were married, but Goetz's children were so indignant that they prevailed upon Hahn to have their step-mother indicted for bigamy; before the trial she got a divorce from Hahn and then she and Goetz were re-married This is a rather mixed business. The case will come up next week.

A gentleman residing in an elegant house in Eighty-third street left town as usual for the Summer on the 20th of June, his three servants remaining in charge. Being informed by one of them, a boy, that the two women had been in the habit of indulging in nightly carousals, he quietly returned on last Sunday morning, when, armed with his double-barrelled shot-gun, he dislodged three men from his own and family beds, and kicked and cuffed them into the street, shoeless, hatless, and coatless. He found that there had been people entertained every night, on one occasion as many as fourteen. They all slept there, they drank his wines, some of which had cost him ten dollars a bottle; they ate his meats, cake, sweetmeats, &c., and the women wore his daughters' dresses.

A gentleman who has spent several years in South America says that the way to sleep comfortably in hot weather is to take a cool bath before going to bed, put on your night shirt without drying the body, and lie down. Still better, to do all this and sprinkle the bed before lying down. If the bath be not convenient, this sprinkling will do. Should anybody try this—though I am far from advising it—I beg that he will publish the result—provided he should live through it.

Robert Bonner, who has made a great fortune out of that trashy paper the New Ledger, is a horse fancier, who makes nothing of giving ten or twenty thousand dollars for a fast horse, not for racing or for public exhibition, but for his own pleasure. An effort is being made to induce him to allow his best trotters to exhibit their speed to the public, and it is said that if any on in the country can beat the time lately made, of a mile in harness in two minutes eleven and three-quarter seconds, it is one or two of Mr. Bonner's horses. It is stated that Mr. Bonner has on his farm, or in his stable, nearly twenty horses that can beat 2:20; several that can beat 2:16, and with a little training would be brought down to 2:14 or 2:13.

Several deaths from sun-stroke occurred yesterday; but in the afternoon a thunder storm with a very heavy fall of rain occurred, and the thermometer fell about 25 degrees, making the night and to-day very tolerable.

There are so many of my friends and customers here that I may not write again soon. H.

Cumberland Politics.

[Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS.]

FAYETTEVILLE, August 27, 1880.

EDITOR NEWS:—Cumberland held her mass meeting yesterday to nominate her ticket for county officers, the Legislature and Senate. It was an immense meeting, and perfect unanimity prevailed, and with almost one voice R. W. Hardie, Cumberland's model Sheriff, was renominated.

For the Legislature, Geo. M. Rose and J. T. Townsend were chosen. The former you know as Cumberland's former able representative; the latter has for the past ten years served as County Commissioner; he is a good man. Cumberland has started right, and I firmly believe that she will give two more Democratic votes in the next Legislature. Lutterloh and Blocker may as well conclude to stay at home.

For the Senate, Harnett and Cuberland selected D. M. McDougald, a man worthy of honor and trust.

Gen. Leach arrived by boat from Wilmington after the Convention adjourned, and responded to the calls of the farmers in a speech of wit and humor. At night he again addressed, on the questions of the day, a large audience. To say that all were pleased does not near express it.

Census Figurers.

[Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS.]

RICHMOND COUNTY, Aug. 27.

* * * The Philadelphia Times of the 12th inst., has an article upon the new apportionment. Taking 300 as the basis, it gives the number of members of the House of Representatives to which each State will be entitled in the 47th Congress. Strangely enough, South Carolina, with a population of 953,410, is given five members, while Louisiana, Maryland and Mississippi, with less, are given six. The ratio being 163,858, our Southern neighbor is entitled to five with a surplus of 134,120. This surplus is large enough for an additional member. Our own State has eight times the ratio, and a surplus of 99,274.

I mention this matter because some of our State papers have fallen into the same error. At some future time, I shall make a critical examination of the whole matter and I shall endeavor to reach absolute accuracy in the calculation.

The census discloses the fact that despite all the falsehood and detraction to which the South has been subjected by the Radical press and politicians, we have steadily increased in population and wealth. This increase demonstrates that there is ample protection to persons and property in our borders. The Times has some sensible and just views in regard to it.

WAKE COUNTY NOTES:—

Swift Creek, August 28, 1880.—Your correspondent has the finest crop of Scuppernong grapes that he has ever seen, and he believes that the vines are in the same condition throughout this ridge. Cotton is opening very fast and the Mayor ought to drive all the lazy lutes out of the city to help pick the crop, not that we want any of them up here, but my country neighbors Dave Lewis, Geo. Cooke, Sater, Upchurch and others need them.

We had a dove killing up here yesterday, in which fifty-three (53) of them and one large hawk succumbed to the marksmanship of three of us, your correspondent being in the minority, and then we dovetailed to the house; now this was beating the famous hunt of Bradley and Bagley, when the latter forgot to fire his gun, though the game was in abundance.

There is but little doing in politics out here, every one being busy in compositing and hunting doves. S. T. G.

JOHNSTON POLITICS:—

Johnston County, August 24, 1880.—On Saturday the 21st, the following resolutions were passed at a meeting held in Pleasant Grove Township for the purpose of appointing delegates to the approaching County Convention in Smithfield:

1st. That we most heartily indorse the Democratic nominations made for President and Vice-President. Also for Gov. T. J. Jarvis and all the other State officers, and Gen. Cox for Congress.

2nd. That we pledge ourselves to support no Independent Candidate for any office.

3rd. That we will abide by the nominations made in the approaching County Convention, waving any and all personal preferences for the general good.

4th. That in our choice for representatives and all officers we recommend two qualifications as necessary, honesty and capacity. B. W. YOUNG,
Chairman.

FRUIT FAIR:—

Asheville, N. C., August 27, 1880.—Please announce that the Fruit Fair called for September 8th, 9th, and 10th, has been postponed till the State Fair in Raleigh in October. This has been rendered necessary for the want of time to perfect arrangements. NATT ATKINSON, Pres't. N. C. F. G. A.

WAIFS:—

An Englishman related that, being at Naples, while taking tea with his wife, a thunder bolt entered the chamber, and the poor woman was reduced to dust. "Ah, mon Dieu!" cried one of his auditors, "what did you do? what did you say?" The Englishman replied, coldly, "I rang and said, 'John, sweep up your mistress."

The Rev. Moses Harris was the Moody of a colored camp meeting at Sherwood, Ohio, and his pretty yellow wife was his Sankey. In the midst of one of his fervid exhortations a tall, gaunt black woman pressed her way through the crowd toward him. He staggered into the arms of the mulatto Mrs. Harris, and a moment later hurried with her beyond the enclosure. The advancing woman shouted, "Stop dem yer niggers! Dar's my husman, fo' heaven. Yo', Moses, come back yer!" An hour later the fugitive couple emerged from a thicket at a station five miles west of the camp, to which point they had walked through the woods, and took a westward train.

Mrs. McWilliams and the Lightning.

[Mark Twain in Atlantic Monthly.]

Well, sir,—continued Mr. McWilliams, for this was not the beginning of his talk,—the fear of lightning is one of the most distressing infirmities a human being can be afflicted with. It is mostly confined to women; but now and then you find it in a little dog, and sometimes in a man. It is a particularly distressing infirmity, for the reason that it takes the sand out of a person to an extent which no other fear can, and it can't be reasoned with, and neither can it be shamed out of a person. A woman who could face the very devil himself—or a mouse—loses her grip and goes all to pieces in front of a flash of lightning. Her fright is something pitiful to see.

Well, as I was telling you, I woke up, with that smothered and unlocatable cry of "Mortimer! Mortimer!" wailing in my ears; and as soon as I could scrape my faculties together I reached over in the dark and then said,—

"Evangeline, is that you calling? What is the matter? Where are you?"

"Shut up in the boot-closet. You ought to be ashamed to lie there and sleep so, and such an awful storm going on."

"Why, how can one be ashamed when he is asleep? It is unreasonable; a man can't be ashamed when he is asleep, Evangeline."

"You never try, Mortimer—you know very well you never try."

I caught the sound of muffled sobs.

That sound smote dead the sharp speech that was on my lips, and I changed it to—

"I'm sorry, dear—I'm truly sorry. I never meant to act so. Come back and"—

"MORTIMER!"

"Heavens! what is the matter, my love?"

"Do you mean to say you are in that bed yet?"

"Why, of course."

"Come out of it instantly. I should think you would take some little care of your life for my sake and the children's, if you will not for your own."

"But my love"—

"Don't talk to me, Mortimer. You know there is no place so dangerous as a bed in such a thunder-storm as this—all the books say that; yet there you would lie and deliberately throw away your life—for goodness knows what, unless for the sake of arguing and arguing, and"—

"But, confound it, Evangeline, I'm not in the bed, now. I'm"—

[Sentence interrupted by a sudden glare of lightning, followed by a terrified little scream from Mrs. McWilliams and a tremendous blast of thunder.]

"There! You see the result. Oh, Mortimer, how can you be so profligate as to swear at such a time as this?"

"I didn't swear. And that wasn't a result of it any way. It would have come just the same, if I hadn't said a word; and you know very well, Evangeline—at least you ought to know—that when the atmosphere is charged with electricity"—

"Oh, yes, now argue it, and argue it, and argue it!—I don't see how you can act so, when you know there is not a lightning-rod on the place, and your poor wife and children are absolutely at the mercy of Providence. What are you doing?—lighting a match at such a time as this! Are you stark mad?"

"Hang it, woman, where's the harm? The place is as dark as the inside of an infidel, and"—

"Put it out! put it out instantly! Are you determined to sacrifice us all? You know there is nothing attracts lightning like a light. [Fzt!—crash!—boom—boloom-boom-boom!] Oh, just hear it! Now you see what you've done!"

"No, I don't see what I've done. A match may attract lightning, for all I know, but it don't cause lightning,—I 'll go odds on that. And it didn't attract it worth a cent this time; for if that shot was leveled at my match, it was blessed poor marksmanship,—about an average of none out of a possible million, I should say. Why, at Dollymount, such marksmanship as that"—

"For shame, Mortimer! Here we are standing right in the very presence of death, and yet in so solemn a moment you are capable of using such language as that. If you have no desire to—Mortimer!"

"Well?"

"Did you say your prayers to-night?"

"I— I— meant to, but I got to trying to cipher out how much twelve times thirteen is, and"—

[Fzt!—boom-berrom-boom! bumble-umble bang-SMASH!]

"Oh, we are lost beyond all help! How could you neglect such a thing at such a time as this?"

"But it wasn't 'such a time as this.' There wasn't a cloud in the sky. How could I know there was going to be all this rumpus and pow-wow about a little slip like that? And I don't think it's just fair for you to make so much out of it, any way, seeing it happens so seldom; I haven't missed before since I brought on that earthquake, four years ago."

"MORTIMER! How you talk! Have you forgotten the yellow fever?"

"My dear, you are always throwing up the yellow fever to me, and I think it is perfectly unreasonable. You can't even send a telegraphic message as far as Memphis without relays, so how is a little devotional slip of mine going to carry so far? I'll stand the earthquake, because it was in the neighborhood; but I'll be hanged if I'm going to be responsible for every blamed"—

[Fzt!—BOOM beroom-boom! boom!—BANG!]

"Oh, dear, dear, dear! I know it struck something, Mortimer. We never shall see the light of another day; and if it will do you any good to remember, when we are gone, that your dreadful language— Mortimer!

"WELL! What now?"

"Your voice sounds as if— Mortimer, are you actually standing in front of that open fire-place?"

"That is the very crime I am committing."

"Get away from it, this moment. You do seem determined to bring destruction on us all. Don't you know that there is no better conductor for lightning than an open chimney? Now where have you got to?"

"I'm here by the window."

"Oh, for pity's sake, have you lost your mind? Clear out from there, this moment. The very children in arms know it is fatal to stand near a window in a thunder-storm. Dear, dear, I know I shall never see the light of another day. Mortimer!"

"Yes!"

"What is that rustling?"

"It's me."

"What are you doing?"

"Trying to find the upper end of my pantaloons."

"Quick! throw those things away! I do believe you would deliberately put on those clothes at such a time as this; yet you know perfectly well that all authorities agree that woolen stuffs attract lightning. Oh, dear, dear, it isn't sufficient that one's life must be in peril from natural causes, but you must do everything you can possibly think of to augment the danger. Oh, don't sing! What can you be thinking of?"

"Now where's the harm in it?"

"Mortimer, if I have told you once, I have told you a hundred times, that singing causes vibrations in the atmosphere which interrupt the flow of the electric fluid, and— What on earth are you opening that door for?"

"Goodness gracious, woman, is there any harm in that?"

"Harm?" There's death in it. Anybody that has given this subject any attention knows that to create a draft is to invite the lightning. You haven't half shut it; shut it tight,—and do hurry, or we are all destroyed. Oh, it is an awful thing to be shut up with a lunatic at such a time as this. Mortimer, what are you doing?"

"Nothing. Just turning on the water. This room is smothering hot and close. I want to bathe my face and hands."

"You have certainly parted with the remnant of your mind! Where lightning strikes any other substance once, it strikes water fifty times. Do turn it off. Oh, dear, I am sure that nothing in this world can save us. It does seem to me that—Mortimer, what was that?"

"It was a da—, it was a picture. Knocked it down."

"Then you are close to the wall! I never heard of such imprudence! Don't you know that there's no better conductor for lightning than a wall? Come away from there! And you came as near as anything to swearing, too. Oh, how can you be so desperately wicked, and your family in such peril? Mortimer, did you order a feather bed, as I asked you to do?"

"No. Forgot it."

"Forgot it! It may cost you your life. If you had a feather bed now, and could spread it in the middle of the room and lie on it, you would be perfectly safe. Come in here,—come quick, before you have a chance to commit any more frantic indiscretions."

I tried, but the little closet would not hold us both with the door shut, unless we could be content to smother. I gasped a while, then forced my way out. My wife called out,—

"Mortimer, something must be done for your preservation. Give me that German book that is on the end of the mantel-piece, and a candle; but don't light it; give me a match; I will light it in here. That book has some directions in it."

I got the book,—at cost of a vase and some other brittle things; and the madam shut herself up with her candle. I had a moment's peace; then she called out,—

"Mortimer, what was that?"

"Nothing but the cat."

"The cat! Oh, destruction! Catch her, and shut her up in the wash-stand. Do be quick, love; cats are full of electricity. I just know my hair will turn white with this night's awful perils."

I heard the muffled sobbings again. But for that, I should not have moved hand or foot in such a wild enterprise in the dark.

However, I went at my task,—over chairs, and against all sorts of obstructions, all of them hard ones, too, and most of them with sharp edges—and at last I got kitty cooped up in the commode, at an expense of over four hundred dollars in broken furniture and shins. Then these muffled words came from the closet:—

"It says the safest thing is to stand on a chair in the middle of the room, Mortimer; and the legs of the chair must be insulated, with non-conductors. That is, you must set the legs of the chair in glass tumblers. [Fzt!—boom—bang!—smash!] Oh hear that! Do hurry, Mortimer, before you are struck."

I managed to find and secure the tumblers. I got the last four—broke all the rest. I insulated the chair legs, and called for further instructions.

"Mortimer, it says, 'Während eines Gewitters entferne man Metalle, wie z. B., Ringe, Uhren, Schlussel, etc., von sich und halte sich auch nicht an solchen Stellen auf, wo viele Metalle bei einander liegen, oder mit andern Korpen verbunden sind, wie an Herden, Oefen, Eisengittern u. dgl.' What does that mean, Mortimer? Does it mean that you must keep metals about you, or keep them away from you?"

"Well, I hardly know. It appears to be a little mixed. All German advice is more or less mixed. However, I think that that sentence is mostly in the dative case, with a little genitive and accusative sifted in, here and there, for luck; so I reckon it means that you must keep some metals about you."

"Yes, that must be it. It stands to reason that it is. They are in the nature of lightning-rods, you know. Put on your fireman's helmet, Mortimer; that is mostly metal."

I got it and put it on,—a very heavy and clumsy and uncomfortable thing on a hot night in a close room. Even my night-dress seemed to be more clothing than I strictly needed.

"Mortimer, I think your middle ought to be protected. Won't you buckle on your militia sabre, please?"

I complied.

"Now, Mortimer, you ought to have some way to protect your feet. Do please put on your spurs."

I did it,—in silence,—and kept my temper as well as I could.

"Mortimer, it says, 'Das Gewitter lauten ist sehr gefahrlich, weil die Glocke selbst, sowie der durch das Lauten veranlasste Luftzug und die Hohe des Thurmes den Blitz anziehen konnten.' Mortimer, does that mean that it is dangerous not to ring the church bells during a thunder-storm?"

"Yes, it seems to mean that,—if that is the past participle of the nominative case singular, and I reckon it is. Yes, I think it means that on account of the height of the church tower and the absence of Luftzug it would be very dangerous sehr gefahrlich not to ring the bells in time of a storm; and moreover, don't you see, the very wording"—

"Never mind that, Mortimer; don't waste the precious time in talk. Get the large dinner-bell; it is right there in the hall. Quick, Mortimer dear; we are almost safe. Oh, dear, I do believe we are going to be saved at last!"

Our little Summer establishment stands on top of a high range of hills, overlooking a valley. Several farm-houses are in our neighborhood—the nearest some three or four hundred yards away.

"When I, mounted on the chair, had been clanging that dreadful bell a matter of seven or eight minutes, our shutters were suddenly torn open from without, and a brilliant bull's-eye lantern was thrust in at the window, followed by a hoarse inquiry:—

"What in the nation is the matter here?"

The window was full of men's heads, and the heads were full of eyes that stared wildly at my night-dress and my warlike accoutrements.

I dropped the bell, skipped down from the chair in confusion, and said,—

"There is nothing the matter, friends,—only a little discomfort on account of the thunder-storm. I was trying to keep off the lightning."

"Thunder-storm? Lightning? Why, Mr. McWilliams, have you lost your mind? It is a beautiful starlight night; there has been no storm."

I looked out, and I was so astonished I could hardly speak for a while. Then I said,—

"I do not understand this. We distinctly saw the glow of the flashes through the curtains and shutters, and heard the thunder."

One after another those people lay down on the ground to laugh,—and two of them died. One of the survivors remarked,—

"Pity you didn't think to open your blinds and look over the top of the high hill yonder. What you heard was cannon; what you saw was the flash. You see, the telegraph brought some news, just at midnight: Garfield's nominated,—and that's what's the matter!"

Yes, Mr. Twain, as I was saying in the beginning (said Mr. McWilliams), the rules for preserving people against lightning are so excellent and so innumerable that the most incomprehensible thing in the world to me is how anbody ever manages to get struck.

So saying, he gathered up his satchel and umbrella, and departed; for the train had reached his town.

Two Old Sayings.

[From the New York Journal of Commerce.]

NEW YORK, August 20, 1880.—Is it Hades or the way thereto which is paved with good intentions? Where is the quotation to be found? What was Hobson's choice?

Reply.—1. The original of "Hell is paved with good intentions" is an old Spanish proverb which may be paraphrased "There is no sinner, how bad soever, but hath an intention to better his life, although death doth surprise him." In 1605 St. Francis de Sales wrote to Madam de Chantal, "Do not be troubled at St. Barnard's saying that 'Hell is full of good intentions and wills,'" but Bernard, if he used it (although we cannot find it in his writings), borrowed it from the Spanish. Precisely in its present form it comes from (An. 1775) Boswell's Life of Dr. Johnson, as one of that great man's sayings.

2. The accepted explanation of "Hobson's choice" is that given in 509 of the Spectator. The first man to keep hackney horses for hire was Tobias Hobson, of Cambridge, England, who had forty, which he let mostly to students. He was accustomed, according to one account, to select a horse for each applicant, and if fault was found to reply, "this or none." According to the Spectator, each customer was served in turn with the horse nearest the door, and a desire for change was met with the same response. When, amid seeming plenty, a man's choice was so hedged about that he was compelled, in spite of the abundance, to take that which was proffered without any selection, he applied to his case the proverb, "It seems to be Hobson's choice—this or none."

An Unreasonable Employer.

[From the Galveston News.]

Young Bummelhans has just been discharged by his employer, old Twopercent. The facts are as follows! Bummelhans had just returned from a trip over the State. His trip had been very satisfactory to himself, perhaps, but not so to his employer. He had spent a great deal of money in buggy rides and one thing and another, and had taken very few orders. When Bummelhans called in to see the old man the latter was mad. He said: "I don't believe you makes any effort to sell goots. Ven I vash a drummer I always sold goots to de merchants no matter ven dey don't vant any. I made de acquainance von everybody."

"How did you use to manage to sell goods when you were a drummer?"

"I vill show you all apout dat. Shoost you sits down in chairs. You pees a country merchant; I plays now de drummer."

"All right," says Bummelhans, "I be a country merchant, and I'll show you how they do."

Bummelhans pretended to be writing at his desk, and old Twopercent came up from one side, blowing and scraping.

"Goot morning. Can't I sell you some goots?"

"Who are you?" says Bummelhans, looking up.

"I travels for de Galveston firm of Twopercent."

"You do, do you? So you travel for that infernal old thief, do you? Take that!" and to impress upon his employer the difficulties of drumming up trade, Bummelhans kicked the old fellow four or five times, pushed him up in a corner and choked him for a while, and then told the old gentleman, who was speechless with bona fide rage, "If you ever come in here again, I'll not leave a whole bone in your carcass."

TOWN AND COUNTY NOTES:

There were sixty bales of new cotton in at 4 p. m. yesterday, and more a comin'.

We saw in Mr. L. C. Bagwell's store yesterday a watermelon two feet nine inches long. Next!

The Superior Court was occupied yesterday in winding up matters on the motion docket.

The County Treasurer paid off yesterday the last jury of 1880, unless there shall be a special term.

The jury in Fowle and Vick vs. Kerchand Boatwright found for the plaintiffs. The defendants appealed to the Supreme Court.

The justices' courts were all in full blast yesterday. Some of the cases ended in jail and some in matrimony, and which were worst time alone can tell.

Mr. W. J. Weir showed us a Haytien bank note yesterday. It is built on the plan of our greenbacks, but the color is red and it is receivable for all public dues.

Capt. J. J. Fray has returned, and the Fray and Morson High School will open to-morrow. This school has become an institution of Raleigh; it is of great benefit to the city and should be encouraged.

The Raleigh Light Infantry has decided to hold a fair to raise funds for the company. A full sketch of the plan is given in the address of the committee published elsewhere. Read it and go help the boys.

Mr. Fred. A. Watson, for many years a popular salesman in the employment of Johns Lewis & Co., has again returned to them. His many friends will be glad to see his pleasant face in its accustomed place.

Rev. Dr. Marshall is at home, after a short vacation, and will officiate in Christ Church to-day at 11 a. m. and 5:30 p. m. Services in the Chapel every Wednesday at 6 p. m., every Friday and on all Holy Days at 10 a. m.

but that doesn't show the postoffice clerk where Miss Louisa Johnson lives without some indication on the two newspapers now in the postoffice for her, waiting further directions.

The firm of Bates & Auchincloss, Philadelphia, paid $100 yesterday for the privilege of exhibiting a good looking young man. They call him a drummer, and he intends to sell spool cotton; but the connection between martial music and spool cotton is entirely too æsthetic for us.

Col. Paul F. Faison, in conformity with a resolution passed at the last meeting of the Central Hancock Club, gives notice that there will be a special meeting of that organization next Wednesday night, at which a full attendance is earnestly requested, as the time has come for the Club to go to work in earnest.

Sawdust Actors.

THE CIRCUS AND HOW IT IS RUN.

The other night, just as the last telegrams began to come, a handsome young gentleman about six feet high, with lovely black side whiskers, laid a card on our table, on which was printed Frank J. Pilling, Advertising Agent of Coup's Show. Now some folks pretend not to like circus men, but when a man knocks around the world until what he don't know about it wouldn't wad a gun, he generally is mighty pleasant to talk to, and so we set to work to interview Mr. Pilling con amore. We first asked him how much it cost to run the show, to which he replied as follows:

"About $3,000 a day out here. Why you see we've got fifty performers and we pay them from one to two hundred dollars a week. There's Watson, we pay him $200 a week, and there's the trained dogs, we pay them $200, and there are Misses Katie and Emma Stokes, we pay them $150 a week apiece. And you just ought to see those girls ride. Game? Why they're the gamest things I ever saw in my life. I saw Miss Katie—you know she does the bareback riding—and I saw her one day, when her horse stumbled and she fell and broke her arm, cry—yes, sir, absolutely cry—because they wouldn't let her go on with her act. And Miss Emma, she's the manege rider. Both the young ladies ride their own horses, and she's got a black, named "Tom," that's as vicious as a rattlesnake. Well, sir, I've seen that horse get to cutting up sometimes in the ring, and as soon as they'd go out he'd know what was coming, and as soon as she got off he would run right into the middle of a gang of as many as trying to hide from her; but she took her little whip and went right in after him, and when she caught him there was a bigger circus than you ever saw in the ring. That horse just got down on his knees, but when she finished with him 'twas as much as a week before he did anything wrong again. Pretty? Well, I should say so. Miss Emma, the eldest, is just in her 20th year. Her face is all covered with dimples, and she has the prettiest figure you ever saw in your life. She's wonderfully shy and retiring, and don't like new acquaintances; but Miss Katie is the very soul of fun. You wouldn't think so either to look at them, for she is two inches taller than her sister, and is as dignified looking as a tragedy queen. Their wardrobes are terribly expensive. Miss Katie bought 180 new costumes in one season.

THE BRONCHOS

are about the greatest things in the show, and by the way they hate women worse than death. I saw one of them go after Miss Emma one day and if Black Tom hadn't driven him off he'd have killed her certain. But they are the smartest things I ever saw in my life. Every one of them knows his name and will come when called by it. They do all the regular old ring tricks, such as finding the handkerchief and all that, and besides these he can go through a regular drill. Mr. Coup has been offered $1,000 a week to exhibit these horses in England a year. Nettle, the big jumper, is one of these horses, and I know that Mr. Coup has refused $50.000 for him. I saw him one day jump over six horses. His regular act is to jump over four horses and a hurdle as high as a horse. Mr. Coup has a farm where the horses are turned out when the season is over, and I've seen them go through their whole performance in the pasture. They were running wild on the plains three years ago, but now they know more than most folks."

A STRICTLY MORAL CIRCUS

By this time we were almost crazy to go to the show, but we feared it might be wrong, and so asked, "What about your moral features?" Mr. Pilling at once reassured us. "Why," said he, "it is strictly moral in every feature. Even the clown has got a lot of new jokes with nothing low in them, and they're really funny, too. One special feature of the show is that we won't tolerate any gamblers or fakirs about us. Where the law don't prohibit them we run them off our grounds, and where the law forbids them we hand the offenders to the police.

"Last winter, while sitting with Mr. Coup in a hotel in Chicago, I heard a circus manager bragging that his show had cleared $89,000 on skin games during the past season. Now you know that's no way to do. Just such things as that make people think badly of all circus folk, and this is all wrong too. The good among us ought not to be condemned for the faults of the bad, any more than all church people ought to be abused because some men steal the livery of Heaven to serve the devil in. We don't allow any snide games to be played on our grounds, and for every cent we take in, we try to give full value in first-class amusement, and in amusement such as the best ladies and gentlemen in the land can enjoy.

THE DEVIL FISH.

"But I almost forgot to tell you about the most wonderful feature of the menagerie, that is the Devil Fish and the baby Sea Lion. I can't describe these to you, but you go and see them, and you'll say they are the most wonderful things your eyes ever looked on. Well, I see you are busy. Good night. Don't forget to come to the show. You'll see a good one."

And the clever git-up-and-gitative agent shook hands and left, and the circus is coming next Friday, and we hope and expect to see everybody there.

A FIELD DAY FOR SURGEONS.—A saw-mill in Keyser, belonging to Guess & Page, yesterday bucked and threw a log on a man's leg. The attack was entirely successful, as the limb was badly broken. As soon as the event became generally known, the saw-mill of Mr. McFayden, moved by a noble spirit of emulation, proceeded to chew off all of a darkey's fingers. This was, perhaps, too enthusiastic. Mr. Wm. A. Sloan, of Jonesboro, having come to hear Leach speak at Sanford, while riding on the front seat of a hand-car, had his leg broken by running into a flat car. There can be no doubt that the flat car was Republican in its politics.

CABINED, CRIBBED, CONFINED.—The Mayor informed us that he had five darkeys, four roosters and one old hen in the cage, charged with larceny. They will not be tried until Monday.

DISPLAY OF MACHINERY AT THE STATE FAIR.—One mark of our rapidly rising tide of prosperity is the influx of engines and machinery and improved agricultural implements. The trade in these is rapidly increasing, and has an almost boundless future. We are pleased to know that North Carolina has become a great market for such goods, because every engine the more is additional horse power to build up our wealth and develope the greatness of our resources.

At the great 20th Annual State Fair of 1880, we shall doubtless witness the finest collection of engines and general machinery ever brought to the State. We are informed that firms in Oswego, N. Y., Erie, Pa., Canton, Ohio, Springfield, Richmond and Norfolk will be represented. We are also glad to know that Capt. Wilkes, of Charlotte, will be on hand with his sterling home manufactures. Arrangements are being made for a better supply of water to the machine shed. Careful supervisors will have charge, and our farmers and men of enterprise who will buy machinery next season are advised where they can this year see the best in operation.

COL. HARGROVE DECLINES.—We have been shown the letter of declination of Colonel Tazewell L. Hargrove, of Granville, as Republican Presidential Elector for this, the Fourth District. The letter is addressed to Col. C. L. Harris, Chairman of the Republican District Committee. Colonel H. says his health is such that he would be unable to canvass as his understanding of the duty of the position of Elector would require. This action on the part of Colonel Hargrove has been rendered necessary by periodical attacks of hay fever and asthma. In declining, however, he expresses his regret at not being able to speak for the National and all other Republican tickets.

We learn that the Republican Executive Committee of this District have called a convention to nominate a candidate in place of Col. H., to meet in this city on Monday, the 13th of September at 2 o'clock, p. m.

DEATH'S DOINGS.—Mortuary report for week ending Saturday evening at sunset, August 28th.

August 18, Thos. Williams, white 1st Ward, age —, diarrhœa.

August 22nd, Thos. Terrell, colored; residence ——, age ——, chronic diarrhœa.

‖August 24th, Flora Moore, colored, 4th Ward, age 50 years. Disease not known.

‖August 25th, Salina V. Brown, colored; 2nd Ward, age 6 months, bowel complaint.

‖August 26th, Sallie Green, colored; 4th Ward, age 4 years, "St. Anthony's fire."

Those marked ‖ had no physician. The health of the city is notably good. There have been one case of diphtheria and four cases of typhoid fever reported to the Superintendent of Health.

The Superintendent of Health requests that the physicians will fill out the certificates after the form supplied to them.

THE RULING PASSION STRONG IN DEATH.—Mr. Fred Lloyd, aged 88, has been married to Miss Julia Lashley, aged 31, both of Orange county. And this reminds us of a story we once heard, when the minister said: "Those who have children to baptize will now bring them forward." Which remark the deaf deacon supplemented by saying: "Those who have none can get them from me at 75 cents each." The Deacon thought that hymn-books were referred to.

ATTENTION.—A special meeting of Raleigh Light Infantry, will be held at the Armory to-morrow (Monday) night. It is very important that every member should attend. By order of Captain.

The greenback party is rapidly being resolved into its constituent elements. In Pennsylvania prominent greenbackers say that the Republican party gains the largest number of accessions by this process.

THE CAMPAIGN.

ATALA DAY AT HENDERSON.

JARVIS, DAVIS AND GREEN.

(Reported for THE RALEIGH NEWS.)

HENDERSON, August 28, 1880.

From Raleigh, a goodly number availed themselves of the low rates offered by the Raleigh and Gaston Railroad to parties attending the speaking. The number was increased at each station, and at Franklinton Capt. J. J. Davis, Col. W. F. Green, and Mr. Thomas, of the Louisburg Courier, joined the party.

AT HENDERSON

we found a large and enthusiastic crowd, and but for the several religious meetings in the immediate neighborhood, there would have been a great many more.

THE SPEAKING

took place foom the portico of the Cooper House, where good substantial seats had been prepared in the beautiful shade in front of the hotel. Capt. Rufus Amis, of the Border Review introduced Gov. Jarvis, in a brief but patriotic speech, in which he paid a glowing tribute to North Carolina, her statesmen, Governors, &c.

spoke for one hour and a half, in a clear, forcible manner, impressing his patriotic admonitions and wise counsels with truths and illustrations in words of liquid light, which were listened to with deep and profound interest, and will no doubt make an impression deep, long and lasting.

The Governor said, when I was with my competitor, Judge Buxton, I had much to say to him and about him. Since he separated from me, I have barely mentioned his name. I shall to-day, however, read to you and comment upon a record he made for himself in the Convention of 1875. That record shows:

1st. That he did not want the thieves of the State disfranchised.

2d. If they were disfranchised, he did not want them to pay any public tax.

3d. He did not want them taken out of the Penitentiary, and put to work on railroads and public roads, for the public benefit.

To sustain the first proposition, he referred to page 221, Journals of the Convention.

To sustain the second, he referred to page 225 of the same Journals.

For the third proposition, page 259.

He held the crowd enchained the whole time. In his closing remarks his eulogy on Hancock was sublime.

HON. JOSEPH J. DAVIS

was next introduced. He arraigned the Republican party before the bar of public opinion and proceeded to try it in such a way as to convince any dispassionate mind that it was not the friend to the South. He said that the tax on sugar, paid by North Carolinians into the Treasury of the United States was more than the whole State debt adding thereto the county and municipal debt.

After speaking of the various subjects sof taxation burdensome to the South, the national indebtedness, frauds, &c., he made a few remarks on Garfield, showing him up in no enviable light.

In contrasting Hancock and Garfield Capt. Davis read General Order No. 40, and the remarks of Garfield on the same, which I copy the benefit of the readers of THE NEWS. On the supplementary reconstruction bill when under consideration before Congress Mr. Garfield said:

"I will not repeat the long catalogue of obstructions which he has thrown in the way by virtue of the power conferred upon him in the reconstruction law of 1867, but I will allude to one example where he has found in a Major General of the army a facile instrument with which more effectually to obstruct the work of reconstruction. This case is all the more painful because an otherwise meritorious officer, who bears honorable scars earned in battle for the Union, has been made a party to the political madness which has so long marked the conduct of the President. This General was sent into the District of Louisiana and Texas with a law of Congress in his hand, a law that commands him to see that justice is administered among the people of that country, and that no pretence of civil authority shall deter him from performing his duty, and yet we find that officer giving lectures in the form of proclamations and orders on what ought to be the relation between the civil and military departments of the Government. We see him issuing a general order in which he says the civil should not give way to the military. We hear him declaring that he finds nothing in the laws of Louisiana and Texas to warrant his interference in the civil administration of those States. It is not for him to say which should be first, the civil or the military, in that rebel community. It is not for him to search the defunct laws of Louisiana and Texas for a guide to his conduct. It is for him to obey the laws which he was sent there to execute."

Capt. Davis is a fine speaker and his speech will long be remembered.

COL. W. F. GREEN,

Hancock and English Elector, was next introduced. The Colonel is a beautiful and forcible speaker, and what Capt. Davis left of Garfield and the party that nominated him, Col. Green demolished. He contrasted the character of the two Presidential candidates, and charged upon Garfield that

1st. He was one of the chief conspirators in the Presidential steal of '76.

2. He stands convicted of legal perjury by a Committee of Congress composed of his own party.

3. He was in favor of forcing social equality upon the white people of the country.

4. He was in favor of placing the reconstruction acts of Congress before the people of the South and a cordon of soldiers, with fixed bayonets, behind them, to enforce the provisions of those acts.

If Col. Green had taken the verdict of the crowd before him, it would have been almost unanimous: "James A. Garfield, you are guilty." And no doubt such will be the verdict of the people in November next.

Col. Green acquitted himself handsomely. He is the right man in the right place, and will do good service for Democracy.

R. A. LEIGH.

It is said the ordinary life of a bee is only ninety days. The end of a bee, however, is very lively.

An Appeal!

To the Citizens of Raleigh:

The Raleigh Light Infantry being regularly and legally a part of the North Carolina State Guard, has been ordered by the proper commanding officer to report at King's Mountain on October 7th, 1880, to take part in representing North Carolina at the Centennial then and there to be celebrated. This the Company desires to do and will do creditably to the State and particularly to the city of Raleigh, provided the citizens will extend to the Company that aid and assistance which is due it and which has of late years not been properly given to an organization well meriting the hearty support of the citizens.

Raleigh Light Infantry has several times come near being defunct, and would now be known only as a thing of the past but for the energy and persistent efforts of some of its officers and members who amid all its reverses have tried to maintain at least its organization. By hard work and carefulness the Company has recently recruited some new members of good material but limited means, and are drilling with a view to being prepared to obey the order to attend King's Mountain Centennial. What is now needed is some of the men to be properly equipped, and to do so is not in the power of the Company nor its individual membership. This help must come from the people. But the Company's pride will not permit absolute appeal for money without one last effort on its part.

It has been determined by the Company to hold a fair under the management of the membership, assisted by ladies whose hands have ever been anxious and willing to help it, for three days and nights at one of the commodious halls in the city, for the purpose of raising the necessary means to put the Company in a proper condition to creditably and well fill its position as senior company of the First Regiment. To do this it must have the hearty co-operation, support, assistance and patronage of the citizens, and to this end the Company appeals to the citizens. Donations for the fair, in cash or goods, are solicited, and proper committees will wait upon our people for their responses. Now is the time for help. It is needed, and believing that the citizens will liberally do their part when they see the Company actually trying to maintain itself, the committee place the matter before the people.

Expectant Spain.

[Cable to the New York Herald, 27th.]

PARIS, August 26.—Our Madrid correspondent telegraphs as follows; "The moment of the Queen's accouchement is so fast approaching that eighty halberdiers are kept ready, night and day, to summon the Ministers and other persons who have been invited for the ceremony which is to take place in the palace directly after the birth. The royal physicians have brought four wet nurses, carefully selected in the mountains of Santander, in the district where the Spanish aristocracy usually get their nurses, who are famed for their health and robust appearance, and who are made all the more striking by their picturesque gray pasiega costumes, laced bodice, braided with gold and silver, bright colored skirts and elaborate headdress. The chief nurse who has been selected is tall and dark, with an almost Arab cast of features. It appears that Her Majesty wished to give breast to her child, but state etiquette forbids. The representatives of the Province of Asturias, from which the heir to the throne takes his title, have arrived, bringing presents and offerings, according to traditional time-honored custom. They alone, with the delegations of Parliament and Madrid, enjoy the right to be present at the birth with the Ministers and Diplomatic Corps. In conservative and royalist circles the coming event is expected with much impatience, as likely to consolidate the dynasty and make the Queen more popular.

The Annihilation of Nihilism.

[From the New York Herald, 27th.]

The joyful refrain of the Russian dispatches for some weeks has been the success of the tactics employed by the "Vice Emperor," General Loris Melikoff, for the suppression of nihilism. The suaviter in modo has been found more efficacious than the fortiter in re. As long as the standard prescription for nihilism was the scaffold, the Siberian mines or the Petropaulovski fortress, nihilism flourished apace. The blood of the martyrs was the seed of the Church. But when the wily Armenian, Loris Melikoff, was called in as chief physician he quickly showed that the hand which opened the gates of Kars and closed the pest houses of the Volga had not lost its cunning. Instead of treating the nihilists as wild animals, to be exterminated by force or fraud, General Melikoff entered into confidential relations with their captive leaders, ascertained the grievances which they had to allege, mitigated some of the traditional abuses of the autocratic regime, and pointed out to these needy and despairing zealots the path by which they might render good service to their native land without the necessity of hiding in caves and cellars and braving the terrors of the "Third Section." After a successful exercise of discretionary power for six months General Loris Melikoff has found it practicable to resign his abnormal mission, to abolish the "Third Section" and to accept the Ministry of the Interior as a basis for carrying out urgent administrative reforms.

Alexander H. Stephens is reported to be in better health than for years past. He can now sit on a hotel piazza at the seaside without paper weights on his coat tails.

Last Sunday two boys out on South Hill ran away from home and went a-fishing, caught six catfish, killed a snake, trapped a brown thrush and then on their way home found a circus ticket and 10 cents. And all that Robert Ingersoll has said and written hasn't done one-half as much to injure the Sunday-schools of South Hill and disturb the settled faith of the younger boys. Some boy will have to be drowned to counteract the influences for evil which the adventures of these two wicked boys are wielding.

This Morning's Telegrams.

Crop Prospects.

NEW ORLEANS, August 28.—The New Orleans Democrat publishes specials from 85 points in Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama and Georgia, giving the condition of the cotton crop.

In Louisiana wet weather, rust and shedding have injured the crop. Worms are reported in some localities. The entire damage will reach 31 per cent.

In Mississippi the damage from the same causes will reach 16 per cent.

The damage in Texas is 28 per cent., and in Arkansas 11 per cent.

Alabama shows an average crop of 400 pounds per acre.

Labor is scarce in Texas and Arkansas, sufficient in Alabama and Louisiana, and scarce in some parts of Mississippi.

The weather is generally favorable, and picking has begun everywhere.

London Stock and Money Market.

LONDON, August 28.—The Economist this week says the rate of discount for bank bills for sixty days to three months is 2⅜a2¾ per cent and for trade bills 2½ per cent. On Stock Exchange prices of government securities have not been well sustained. The American railway market has suffered somewhat but home railways and miscellaneous companies have as a rule maintained their positions in public favor. The continuance of favorable harvesting weather has stimulated prices. Money for stock exchange purposes is abundant. Erie shares and bonds have been adversely affected by a report from New York that a rival line to Buffalo is in contemplation.

The Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, August 28.—The weekly statement of the associated banks shows the following changes: Loans increase $71,800; specie decrease $1,303,700; legal-tender increase $81,300; deposits decrease $2,192,200; circulation decrease $31,300; reserve decrease $674,350. The banks now hold $6,643,575 in excess of legal requirements.

From Ocean to Ocean.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—The end of the track of the Southern Pacific Railroad is now within 196 miles of El Paso and it is the intention to reach that point on or before January 26, 1881. On the 23rd inst. the party in front had surmounted all the obstacles encountered in the Dragoon Mountains. The boundary line between New Mexico and Arizona will be reached in 12 days.

THE DAILY NEWS.

RALEIGH, N. C.

SUNDAY.....AUGUST 29, 1880

SUPREME COURT.

DECISIONS FILED SATURDAY, AUGUST 28.

By SMITH, C. J.:—

Mabry vs. Henry, Buncombe. Plaintiff's appeal reversed; Defendant's affirmed.

After a motion to vacate a judgment has been made and refused the Courts will not in a new action either vacate the judgment or declare it a mere security for a sum thereafter to be ascertained.

Turner vs. Gaither, Iredell. New trial ordered.

Money advanced to an infant to enable him to obtain a professional education is not a "necessary" for which the infant can bind himself. To make an infant's contract binding he must after age not only acknowledge his liability but expressly ratify the contract and make a new promise to pay.

Webber vs. Webber, Edgecombe. Reversed.

When one of the parties to a suit dies between judgment and verdict, the suit does not abate.

Brown vs. Morris, Cabarrus. Affirmed.

It is competent to contract verbally that the property in bricks made by one on the land of another shall be in the owner of the soil until his charges on them are paid. A contract made by one as agent can be recovered on by his principal even when the third party, without being misled, regards himself as dealing with the agent only.

Jones vs. Bunker; Surry. Reversed.

The question of boundary is one of law. No other general principle was decided in this case, it being only a question of the construction of a description.

Bank of Statesville vs. Pinkers and Elason; Iredell. Affirmed.

When error is assigned that improper evidence was admitted, the exception should state the specific grounds on which the objection was based; whether a leading question shall be allowed or not, is matter for the discretion of the court. The general rule of mercantile law may be modified by proof of a particular custom.

Price vs. Cox; Henderson. Error.

Attachment will issue only in actions on such contracts as will admit of the plaintiff specifying the sum due him, and where the clerk can enter judgment without the intervention of a jury.

Briggs vs. Smith; Davidson. Reversed.

The statute of limitations does not run against a married woman.

McMichael vs. Hunt; Guilford. Affirmed.

This was merely a construction of a clause in a will, and involves no general principle of law.

Alexander vs. Wolfe; Mecklenburg. Affirmed.

Where one was guardian of an infant and at her death became administrator, he may be sued in both capacities in one action.

Osborne vs. Calvert; Iredell. Affirmed.

An award to be upheld must be coextensive with the agreement to refer, and must decide all disputed matters. Parol evidence will be received to show what matters were examined and determined by arbitrators.

Scott vs. Timberlake; Franklin. Error. Plaintiff non-suited.

When one goes into bankruptcy, a note held by him is, whether it goes into the hands of the assignee or is held by the bankrupt as part of his exemption, subject to all the equities which affected it before bankruptcy.

By ASHE, J.:

Wilkerson vs. Buchanan; Granville. Affirmed.

Since the Act of 1879, Chap. 183, a party in interest is an incompetent witness in a suit on a bond executed previous to the first day of August, 1868. The competency of a witness in a civil suit is to be determined by the law as it exists at the time he is called upon to testify, regardless of what may have been the rule at any previous time.

State vs. Hinson; Mecklenburg. Reversed.

A defendant convicted in an Inferior Court has the right of appeal to the Superior Court for errors assigned in matters of law, but is not entitled to a trial de novo. Where, in such appeal, no statement of the case nor bill of exceptions had been transmitted with the record from the Inferior Court, the Judge of the Superior Court should have affirmed the judgment of the Inferior Court unless there was error apparent in the record and have certified the final decision of the Superior Court to the Inferior Court.

Brodgen vs. Henry, et al.; Buncombe. Affirmed.

Where a defendant surety to a bond dated January 31, 1876, due ninety days after date, and on which suit was entered February 2, 1880, in his answer relied upon the Statute of Limitations, and the plaintiff moved to strike out the answer as irrelevant and frivolous and for judgment:

Held, That the answer was neither irrelevant nor frivolous, but raised an important question. Where an answer is put in in good faith and is not manifestly impertinent, the defendant is entitled to have the facts either admitted by a demurrer or passed on by a jury. It is doubtful whether in this case, the plaintiff had right of appeal from the refusal of the judge to strike out, etc.

State vs. Reese; Bertie. Reversed.

An indictment for obtaining goods and money under false pretences is fatally defective which does not describe the goods specially by the names usually appropriated to them and the money by naming the amount obtained.

Welfare vs. Thompson et al; Davidson. Affirmed.

Parol testimony is admissible to show that a defendant signed a bond as surety, and that the obligee knew he so signed it when the note was received and the money loaned.

The lapse of three years bars an action against a surety on a sealed note.

By DILLARD, J.:—

Hull, Lanier & Co., vs. M. E. Carter; Buncombe. Affirmed.

In order that an answer should be stricken out as frivolous, the matters set up must be so clearly bad as to be capable of being pronounced frivolous on bare inspection. The court, in this case, strongly intimate the opinion that a refusal to strike out an answer is not appealable.

McClenahan vs. Cotten; Chatham. Reversed.

A defendant sued in a Justice's court may set up a counter-claim, the principal of which is beyond a Justice's jurisdiction; but one who is sued as a personal representative cannot, after the death of his decedant, purchase a claim against a creditor of the estate, and make use of it as a counter-claim or set off.

GILDERSLEEVE'S
LATIN SERIES.
—BY—
B. L. Gildersleeve, Ph. D., Gottingen, LL.D., Professor of Greek in Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

Rarely have text-books been greeted with so large a measure of favor and hearty appreciation, as these books by Professor Gildersleeve have received from the best scholastic and educational minds of the country. The author, now of national reputation as a scholar, has had very complete preparation for such a work. After being graduated at Princeton, he studied for several years in the Universities of Germany, where he received his Ph.D., etc., with highest honors. His subsequent life has been devoted to teaching and linguistic study. When the new and richly endowed Johns Hopkins University sought for a fit man for its chair of Greek, the appointment was conferred on Prof. Gildersleeve, after wide conference, and without his solicitation or effort, and his work as senior professor of the University attracts marked attention. He is also the presiding officer of the American Philogical Association.

Prof. Gildersleeve's Latin books are the product of this order of ability and educational training. Embodying the best results of recent studies in Latin philology, they are simple, clear and practical in method.

THE LATIN PRIMER,

complete in itself, a naturally developed course for beginners, at once holds the interest of the pupil, and prepares him thoroughly for ready and intelligent use of Grammar and Reader, or Latin author. It supplies: "Maximum of Forms; Minimum of Syntax; Early Contact with the Language in Mass."

A teacher in one of the leading High Schools of the country, who conducted a large class through this book, writes:

"We have just finished the Primer, having spent upon it thirty-four weeks; and I have been trying to realize my pupils' attitude towards the study, as compared with that of other classes I have known. They have the use of a larger vocabulary; their text-book has secured for them a careful drill in the normal terminations; they have been brought more into contact with the language in the concrete, and have, therefore, a more vivid interest in it; and they have been less perplexed by exceptional forms and difficult construction.

"The book is thoroughly alive, and will perforce make its students so."

THE LATIN GRAMMAR

is marked by its genuine scholarship, clear and logical arrangement of material, and a typography that pleasantly aids the eye. Its presentation of forms is plain and convenient; its definitions, rules and other statements are brief and pointed; and its translations of illustrative examples are most striking models for students.

THE LATIN READER

has Fables and Stories; "De Gestis Alexandri," a most interesting narrative, chiefly from Curtius; one book of Cæsar's "De Bello Gallico," treated in a manner to make it an admirable drill in Latin Syntax; also notes and References to the Grammar, and a Vocabulary.

THE LATIN EXERCISE-BOOKS.

a book of Latin Composition, compact in form, is noticeable for its well-graded course of exercises, apt choice of idioms, and adaptation to train the average learner to a thorough mastery of the words and constructions of the language.

Single specimen copies for examination furnished on receipt of the following prices:

LATIN PRIMER, 12mo, 192 pages	$0 65
LATIN GRAMMAR, 12mo, 384 pages	95
LATIN READER, 12mo, 192 pages	70
